

DOLPHINS

Have been described as “Man’s Cousin in the Sea”

HARMONY, RESPECT AND INTEGRATION

Author/broadcaster Dr HORACE DOBBS’ life-time mission has been to encourage harmony, respect and integration between dolphin and man.

In the early days of his research HORACE DOBBS was awarded a Silver Bowl (the equivalent to an Oscar) for his talk on dolphins by the International Platform Association in Washington. Other recipients include Winston Churchill and John F Kennedy.

Now in his twilight years, aged 84, Horace invites you to send International Dolphin Watch your thought-provoking stories/pictures on how you have met mammals in their natural environment and how that experience made you feel.

Following the recent BBC Blue Planet 11 first episode, Horace Dobbs has been described as “Sir David Attenborough equivalent in the dolphin world”.

In his presentations Horace takes his audience on an enthralling journey into the joy filled world of the dolphins. Along the way he reveals how he left orthodox medical research to find out why dolphins have such a special place in our hearts. And of the extraordinary events that led him to discover that dolphins could help those in clinical depression.

You can enjoy the IDW Classic Film
Bewitched by a Dolphin he filmed off the British Coast

Available from the IDW Shop <http://www.idw.org/dolphinshop.htm>

Biographical note

Dr Horace Dobbs has published scientific papers in fields as diverse as nuclear chemistry and pharmacology. His remarkable and adventurous life is documented in numerous best selling books and TV films. He founded The Oxford Underwater Research Group and the Non-profit organisation International Dolphin Watch www.idw.org